Seniors express opinions, emotions, and personalities

Seniors found many ways of expressing themselves including writing, dressing, and jumping up and down

Steve Burger expressed his opinions in his Eagleye column, "Insights" It dealt with topics like prison reform, draft registration, and student rights

"It's a legal way to get my point across to a large number of people. Hike to share my views with people, because maybe somebody will gain insight," he said

Kris Berger said that when somebody had an opinion contrary to hers, "I felt really trustrated at myself when I could have said something but I didn t."

Terri Kellar said she expressed herself however she wanted and didn't worry about conforming because the people important to her didn't care, and she didn't worry if a few people objected

"If I'm all excited, I scream a lot and jump up and down," said Anita Petty "Most people reacted favorably because it showed school spirit" she said

"I told the world to kiss off," said Gary Polinder. "I wore whatever I wanted. I'm against conformity, but I can't be a nonconformist because then I'd be conforming to nonconformity."

Art displays inner being

Painting, music, and drama were three mediums seniors employed to display their artistic feelings.

Art students felt their art work expressed their personality and mood

"It showed my inner being," said Carolyn Elliott

Christeen Thomas, who painted a butterfly stuck on flypaper, felt it expressed her sentiment that "I got the feeling I was fied in and had to get out."

"When I was mad, I drew dragons and gross, makebelieve creatures," said Tammy Burden, "When I was tense, I drew straight lines and rigid things as I drew down the page and screamed."

Music students expressed their moods and feelings by playing an instrument, singing, or with their choice of

Mark Hollis, trumpet player, said playing solos was a good way to express oneself but "some solos fit you, some don't. Some people express themselves better through jazz; some, classical music."

Heather Garcia felt personality was expressed by one's taste in music. "I like disco because I'm always on the move," she said.

Rob Noteboom, actor, said that in drama he expressed his own self because "you try to put what little of you there is into a part."

Seniors take CWP-non drug

Seniors had yet another requirement shackled to their brain. That requirement was a full year of Contemporary World Problems

CWP was added to the schedule of requirements to fulfill state and district requirements. The state law called for students to take a year of 20th century history. The district wanted a full year social studies course at the senior level.

Mr Max Boekenoogen, Mr Dick Guthrie, and Mr Paul Belben taught the course. Students received six weeks of instructions from each teacher before moving onto another teacher.

"Parts of the course were valuable," said Mr. Boe kenoogen, "It turned out to be a lot more interesting than we first expected."

Mr Boekenoogen felt the seniors liked the course because they didn't get bored with one teacher. He also said he would like for seniors to choose from more than one social studies course

'Next year the course will be even a lot better than it was this year," he said

 Christeen Thomas fulfills her last English requirement by taking Semantics, offered along with Western Civilization and Sentor English

Scheduling for graduation entails more effort for some

Scheduling the last required classes for graduation credits was one way of preparing for graduation. But, actually making the event happen entailed more effort.

Graduation theme was voted on by the class in October and then revoted on because of a three-way tie. The theme was "Reaching for Tomorrow; Remembering Yesterday."

To let people know that they had finally made it, an announcement committee was formed to select different styles to bring back for a class vote

Committee members were Lori Hehr, Kenya Knutson, Missy Meeks, Vikki Malloy, Sandi Schweigart and Todd Young Mr Bill Marchand, sales representative for Herff Jones, assisted in announcementa and cap and gown selection. The seniors ordered their caps and gowns January 22

A committee was selected to decide commencement and baccalaureate programs

Mr. Bitl Marchand, senior graduation representative, and Kenya Knutson, senior class president, tell the senior class about the announcement design choices.

Tourist/Jamaican day part of Homecoming festivities

"Hey, a Jamaican just went by!"

Actually it was Starla Schroeder, competition chairman, disguised on Tourist, Jamaican day during Home-coming week

For seniors this was a victorious event as they won the hall competition, the dress-up competition, and the competitions held on the football field. These consisted of the traditional pyramid, licorice eating, the roll, water passing, and a relay.

Senior hall was decorated with many streamers ranging from light blue to pink to deep purple according to Kenya Knutson, senior class president, to get a sunset effect. Paper curtains adorned the two entrances to the hall and posters of starry skies lined the hall above the lockers. Little hot air balloons with names identified the locker occupants.

Senior float also followed the hot air balloon theme. A river and a hill upon which King Robbie Bowman, and Queen Misty Scott sat was the bulk of the float with a balloon in the corner. Senior princess Annette McFadden sat on a hay bale while her escort Jim Taxdahi had to play in the football game.

According to Suzie Ford, Homecoming chairman, the week went very well. Both Ford and Knutson agreed punk rock day was the best.

- Tee-shirt and tie are part of Kathryn Schmidt's punk rock costume during the dressup days of Homecoming week.
- Rolling her way across the field to help the seniors to second place is Suzie Ford during the Homecoming roll competition.

Seniors go to tech school

Not all seniors spent their entire day at school. Some attended the Beilingham Vocational-Technical School to learn a trade, and others took Diversified Occupation. (DO) which entailed leaving school early to go to work.

Seniors successful all round

The senior class of 1982 had a successful graduation and much of that was due to the help and aid given to them by the senior class officers

The officers were Kenya Knutson, president, John Petty, vice-president; Michelle Meeks, secretary; and Charmaine Faller, treasurer

"A lot of my time was spent dealing with representatives of announcements, caps and gowns," said Knut-SOF

"Much of what we did was not seen until spring in the form of graduation because that was what we spent most of our time on," said Meeks

Halls filled with devilment

Senioritis hit the class of '82 early. They excelled in class competition at the pep assemblies and during Homecoming week

Anybody cruising through senior hall during second lunch risked their life. Ed Granger, Rob Bowman, and other study seniors would fly through the air descending on their victim in the famous "dog pile." Occasionally, to break the monotany of the day, speciators fined the halls to watch the chicken races.

At the beginning of the year students were told they could no longer eat in the hallways. After a few weeks of crowded tables and excessive noise, second lunch seniors staged the take-over of the private table section. The girls armed themselves with waterguns, the guys merely threatened death to the underclassmen. The area was then considered the junior/senior tunch section.

Winter brought snowball fights, "escorting people" into the snow, (face first), but best of all was the senior Christmas tree. It had lights and was decorated with various senior treasures. A tradit onal senior mistle toe also took its place among the decorations.

"Considering all the rules and regulations we were up against. I think we've gotten away with a lot," said Kelly Muder, senior

TAing, the senior thing to do

Teachers' assistants were commonplace in the high school but TAing at other schools was only into its second year. It was originally started last year by Mr. Paul Schaefer, counselor

Kris Bowser TA d for Mrs. Bliss Potts, a third grade. teacher at Skyline

"I loved it, it was really rewarding," she said. She helped by correcting papers, taking the children out to recess, helping students who needed extra help, and other little chores.

Mrs. Potts was all for it. "It was good for the students. and they (the TA) were helpful for the teacher," she sa d

Margaret Steinbach, worked at Mt. View with the handicapped, ranging between ages 5.11

"It was hard. You had to have a lot of patience," she said

Albert Toby was another TA at Skyline. The fourth grade class he worked with was a lot of fun and a good experience, he said

Other TAs were Lyhea Fox, Anita Petty, Jeff Aragger. and Maltory Nilsen.

Seniors enjoy honor pass

One of the luxuries of being a senior was being able to have a senior honor pass. This was a pass that enabled seniors to have a free period in which they could go to the library, the cafeteria, or leave Many people took late arrival to catch a few extra winks of sleep or early dismissal to get on their way early.

To get an honor pass a student could not have flunked any classes in their entire four years at FHS

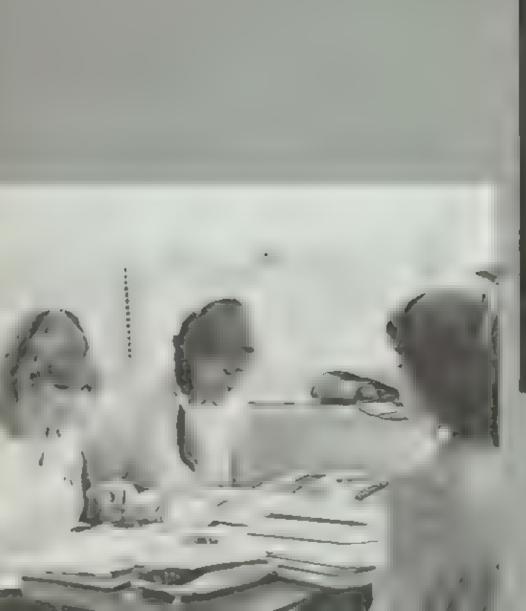

"I usualty went to the cafeteria and caught up on my homework," said Cheri Smith

"I took my honor pass first period so I could sleep a little longer," was Ken Altona's reason for having one

"I couldn't stand being in school for aix periods a day. It just drove me nuts, so I decided to take one," Tammi Pottle said.

Students were allowed only one honor pass a semester Approximately 65 seniors had one each semester

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

Practice brings precision

"Success comes from student leadership, discipline to drill, dedication to do tedious work, numbers (of band members), and positive attitudes," said Mr. Mel Hansen, director.

Home football halftime performances helped the band prepare for competition. Five all-day practices aided their achievement

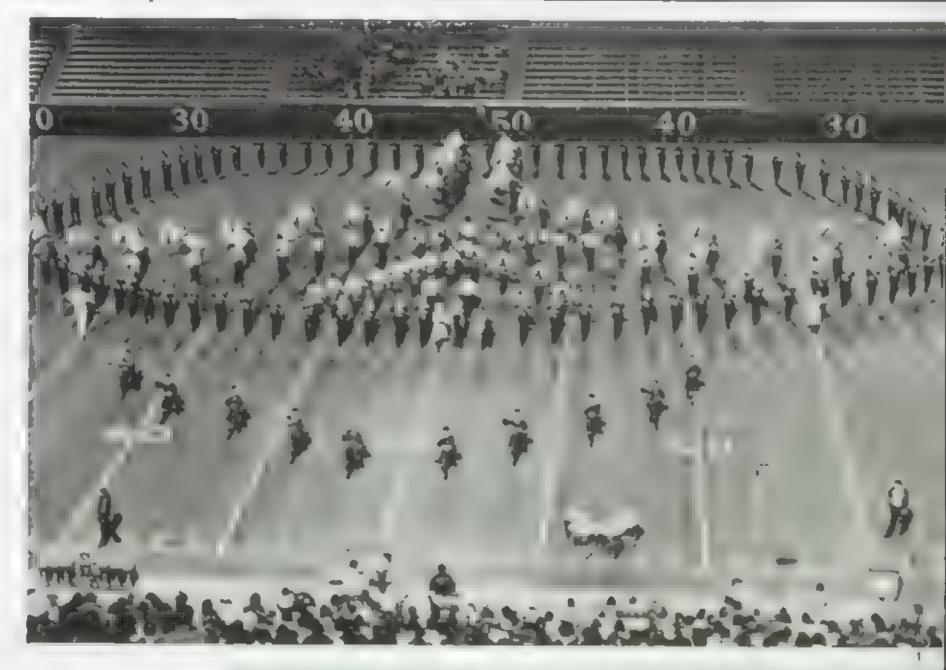

Accomplishments included a Division A championship at the Northwest Regional Competition at Spokane, and a fourth place overall among 25 competing bands. Marchers again earned first place in their division in the Kingbowl Marching Band Sweepstakes with excellent ratings from the judges.

Basketball game performances kept the players in shape for spring activities as well as concerts January 28 and March 4. Blossomtime and other parades filled the spring season.

"Uncle Mel" coached the band in a continuing tradition to march to the top.

Band corps

"Parade rest, and one, two. Band, ten hut, move! Mark-time mark!" Director Mel Hansen's stern and controlled voice rang out in the silence.

These among other commands and routines were taught and developed at band camp, held at Camp Lutherwood on Lake Samish. Cindy Peddington, flag expert, and Kent Keatting, rifle specialist, assisted Mr. Hansen and Mrs. Jan Relethford, volunteer guard instructor, in advancing the guard style and skill

Flag and rifle corps joined with the band to perform at five home football games, a BC Lions football game, a Western Washington football game, and two major competitions, Spokane Invitationals in October, and Kingbowl in December

January through March, flags and rifles worked on fundamentals and routines for winter guard and five or six parades.

Tammy Boggess, senior; Connie Heinrichs, senior; Carolyn Bernard, junior; and Denise Lien, sophomore, lead in flags. Elita Gamble, senior; and Wendy Kellar, sophomore; lead in rifles in the fall. Frosh span new horizons

Spanning new horizons is exactly what the freshman band and girls glee did

The freshman band took part in the same rigorous marching routines as the senior band, and marched along side them this spring in the Blossomtime parade and others.

January 26 they performed at the pops concert, and later in early March they performed in the Winter band concert.

"I viewed this freshman band as a particularly outstanding class," said Mr. Mel Hansen, director

Girls glee, under the direction of Mr. Garry Potts and student teacher Mrs. Paula McLaughlin, also touched on some new things

At the Christmas Vespers, they performed Renaissance-type music. All but one selection was a cappella

Swing Choir still on top

"I direct the swing choir for the kids, for the audience, and I guess because I love to do it," said Mr. Garry Potts, choir director

Being a member of the awing choir took more than a great singing voice. It took a lot of time and dedication but the number one requirement was attitude, stated Mr. Potts.

Among the many events the awing choir participated in were numerous FHS banquets, contests, and community concerts; such as at the senior citizens center, Jet Oldsters, and at Johnson's restaurant

Mr. Potts and his brother, Mr. Larry Potts, also set up an exchange jazz festival with Cole High School where Mr. Potts' brother conducts choir.

The exchange isn't just going and singing but it's getting to know other kids and their parents and seeing what other people in the state are like," said Mr. Potts

Choir members voice pride

Concert Choir has a tradition of good music and of good sound. And this year was no exception

Choir students performed 65 pages of music at the Christmas Vespers December 20 and 21. A favorite for all was the touring of the Tri-Cities in April

"It was more than just a tour, it was a new exper- and dience. It gave everyone a chance to meet new people said Mr. Garry Potts, director.

Most of the money raised from the pancake sale last fall was used to pay for tours such as the Tri-Cities tour. The 76 member choir raised $800 from the pancake sale and over $1,300 from the jewelry sale.

Eight different concerts through the year included the lall concert October 29 and the winter concert February 25

It took approximately two to three months to learn the music for each concert. Other concerts included the contest concert April 15 and the spring concert May 27.

Orchestra has great year; Music Club makes money

Orchestra members had an excellent year. Six concerts, which included two choir and full orchestra numbers, and various other distinctions, included a tour to the Sea-Tac area, helped it along

The pieces the orchestra played on tour included "Notturno" by Borodin and "Concerto Grosso No. 4" by Correlli. The concerto featured four violin soloists, Tony Gault, David Olsen, Francis Senger and Karin Eschli-

The orchestra played all types of music from Baroque to modern and pop but preferred to play Baroque because it was challenging and each part got the melody at some time

In addition to tour, the orchestra went on a field trip to the Seattle Youth Symphony dress rehearsal and concert Tony Gault, junior, and Doug Johnson, sophomore, were members of the symphony. Gault was co-concert master and Johnson played bass

Another distinction for these members was being chosen for All-State along with Spencer Nelson, junior, and David Olson, sophomore. This was the most ever chosen from orchestra for All-State.

The money for tour was provided by the orchestra members who collected newspapers for Georgia Pacific Music Club and had two fund raisers this year-the pancake breakfast and Music Club dance. That money went to pay large group contest fees, solo and ensemble contest fees and All-State fees. Most of the money, however, went for a high-quality, tape duplicating ma-

Drama club starts early to turn out plays for FHS

Drama Club had three plays under their belt by the end of the yar: "The Odd Couple," "Hansel and Gretel," and "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Preparations for the 1981-82 school year started early for the club members, however. They went to work on the play, "The Odd Couple," in August spending three to four days a week on the production, said Craig Willis, Drama Club president

Some club members were also able to perform in the first version of "Hansel and Gretel", written and directed by Mr. Roy Bentley and performed at the Bellingham Theater Guild. The play was to raise money for the building fun

The second version of "Hansel and Gretel" was rewritten by Mr. Bentley and recast for performances at FHS in March

However, Drama Club was involved in more than plays. "What we tried to do in Drama Club was provide opportunities for students to see other local productions," said Willis

Willis also said they tried to establish a scholarship for students intending to make drama their career. The club hoped to attend a Shakesperean festival in Ashland Oregon during the summer of '82

Drama club officers were Crarg Willis, president, Margo Lieshman, vice president; and Erik Birkeland, secretary-treasurer

Movie Club makes films

One might think that Movie Club would involve attending movies. However, Movie Club involved the actual making of movies

Movie club was a relatively new club, started up just last year. The person who began it, Jon Anderson, moved away and David Andres, junior, took charge. He was responsible for the video equipment which was borrowed from the athletic department. The films were made with video tapes and a video recorder. In return the Movie Club took films of sports activities such as volleyball and basketball.

In January a half-hour spoot of French cooking including commercials was done

According to Andres, filming a movie took a lot of preparation. Last year a film entitled "Free at Last" took a total of two days to shoot

"Also, we did animation," said Andres

The club met once a week, plus on filming days Mr Carl Steiner was the advisor and about five-10 people were active

- For the object to be filmed in focus Scott Muggy, freshmen, adjusts the focus knob.
- 2 Setting up figurines for filming is David Andres junior
- Members of the 1981 Movie Club are row 1: Shelley Scoggins.

The dirt black cloud enguls the sky and people scream and call out, " why?"

The earth trembies, the mountain roars not far below he closes the doors. He shakes his head and starts to grin, he slived his life ino time to win.

The boiling mud enguls his home.

I taked with you,
you made me listen
I walked with you,
you made me run.
I fooked with you,
you made me see
I feaned on you,
you made me stand
I asked of you,
you made me answer
I fearned from you,
you made me strong

Destiny

Is it a ways tomorrow And never today Will I ever have strength to find my own way? Will guidance come From above or be 5x2 Can I decide for myse: Which way to go? My future my destiny That's what's at stake Oh God, there are so man, What road do I take? Do I put it off 'til temorrow Or decide right now To plan my future Why, I don't know

And prepared for me

I don't know how or

Which way they should be

Confused and a one

Not knowing what to do

My start in life

makes it seem like it's all through

Please God heip me

Decide for myseif

A Child

A child's eyes see things of therent from our own the world is a fantasy and war is unknown.

Guns are cowboys and Indians Blood is just a wound that will recover in time then soon be forgotten

Running is a game instead of for life because the world isn't reality when seen through a child's eyes.

Endlessly

I may run a thousand miles and never reach the end
I may speak a thousand words and never match the wind
I may search a thousand faces and never find a friend
I may be a thousand people, and never be just me
But for now I II slow down
and spend time loving you,
endlessly

"I'll Remember You"

Unen times have passed

And into seperate lives we've lapsed
Ull remember the good times

All the things that we shared

Those times, so special

The ways that we cared

Ill remember the times
That we passed between classes
And the greeting that lingered
Even after the masses

I'll remember with feeling.
The years spent together.
The years made our own,
They ill be with us forever.

And I know when I look back
On these years that quickly flew,
I'll reflect with special fondness
As I remember you

No Tears For Her

Chuck hated to admit it but what he really felt at the funeral more than anything else was boredom. He sat there observing the beautiful it was arrangements all around the room.

He telt bad for not crying or anything. No matter how hard he tried he couldn't shed a single tear. He was sorry she died but his body wasn't about to show emotions.

He watched as the small groups of people stopped to look at the stiff ligure, then it was his turn. As he got out of his seat he felt faint, his body was awaying, and his stomach felt squeezy.

His mind kept flashing what seemed like a militor dead bodies past his eyes. And still he couldn't picture her. He was at the foot of the coffin and, inchiby inch, as he walked, it revealed more and more of her to him. Once hear her head he could hard y hold bank the tears. He didn't understand why his body wanted to cry after feeling so bored not more than just two minutes ago. He reached out a shaky hand to straighten out the bow and to pick up imally narry particles off her dress. His stomach had settled down quite a but as the tears flowed over. He was definitely not going to let anybody see him cry. He started to leave but it was too late. He could leef the warm hand on his should her and a tender arm around his waist. He turned to see who had hold of him. There was no one there. He thought it must have been his imagination as he was flinking back to when she used to hugh milke that when he was upset or not feeling well.

Art, music, athletics just few ways of expression

Through many different ways juniors expressed themselves. Writing, dance, athletics, and art were just a few examples

"I think I express myself through the way I draw and paint and I help people with their problems," Laurie Gavin explained "I like it when they come to me," she added

According to Rebecca Nesbit, "I express myself through dance (ballet), it makes me feel good about myself."

Laura Lattig expressed herself in a number of ways
"I knit sweaters, I write poetry but I won't let anyone read it. I like to ride my horse, I get rowdy at football games," she listed

Renee Rasmussen did body arts. "Karate, dance (all types), stuff that you use your body to communicate with. I do crazy things to—being rowdy, anything that makes people around me laugh," she explained

One question that came about was that of juniors expressing themselves in their own way without worrying about what everyone else was doing

"I think a lot of kids are starting to realize what they want." Margo Leishman said

"Yes, definitely, Lattig said, "They're doing that thing, we're doing this thing," she stated

- ELAINE WOODS and Ron Eggers, Juniors, Deann Borings, senior and Wendi Larson and Tom Erickson Juniors, express themselves by acting weird in Junior half at Junchtime.
- Bruce Guyant, junior, expresses himself by cuddling with his teddy bear on the way to band competition.

Prom, concession are officers major jobs

Prom and the concession stand were labeled as the major jobs of the junior class officers.

Cathy Bozanic, president, felt that finding people to work in the concession stand at home football games was difficult. "People were either in band or they just didn't want to work," she said

According to Angela Dawn, treasurer, the money made from the concession stand paid for the junior-senior Prom. Money leftover and money raised from various fundraisers went to pay for the senior cruise

Supplying leadership for the juniors were Bozanic, Dawn, Tracy Nordby, vice-president and Jill Peterson, secretary.

During Homecoming week, juniors placed second with 325 points. They also placed second in a treasure hunt and a football hike at pep assemblies.

Juniors worked hard

If students were seen walking around the halls with bewildered looks on their faces, they most likely were not lost and not stoned. They were juniors

Most juniors agreed that this was the most difficult year academically in their high school career although the only requirements were Consumer Economics or Personal Finances and American Literature. However, a lot of juniors were planning for college

"Math analysis drove me crazy. The requirements were really no harder but if you were college bound, you had to take heavy electives," said Ron Eggers

"This year was definitely rough. I had to take more classes to get ready to go to college. I didn't know if I was going until this year, so I suddenly had to crameverything in," said Dawn Bruce.

Even juniors who weren't college-bound found the requirements difficult

"I'm not going to college but the required classes that you had to take had more homework," said Rosanna Jones

Float turns out after all

Juniors excelled during Homecoming week, but faces fell when their float fell to devastation before judging

Juniors also did well in the week-long competition winning second place in both outside and dressing-up competition. A third place was gathered in hallway decorations

Floats were not judged due to the destruction of the junior float

"I opened the door and there it was, all a mess," said Cathy Bozanic, junior Homecoming chairman

The float was fixed up in five hours before the parade with the total cooperation of the junior class

"Mr. and Mrs. Derr really helped, too," said Bozanic When fixed, the float was a large kite floating on clouds of angel hair with two large clouds for the royalty to sit upon

Junior Homecoming royalty was Cathy Bozanio and Curt Hawkins

Hallway chairman was Jill Peterson. The hallway was purple dominated with lights for stars. Multi-colored streamers framed the hall

Junior class kicks back

The Junior class spent their free time engaging in a wide spectrum of activities which ranged from partying to being co-concert master of the Seattle Youth Symphony (Tony Gault)

Traci Brown and Angela Dawn revealed that they spent most of their spare time indulging in eating, gossiping, and cruising around and checking out the single guys

A lot of juniors turned out for some of the many sports offered at FHS

Scott Locker, Junior, relaxed and listened to music when he wasn't turning out for sports. Needless to say, Locker didn't have much time for relaxation

"I spent most of my time playing basketball and rollerskating," said John O'Donnel

Some juniors hung around so much after school that it would lead one to wonder "Don't these people have lives?"

"I'm not sure what I do but homework isn't it," stated Patti Hoksbergen

Administrators reach goals

Starting off the school year, the school administrators had two major goals: course outline and curriculum, and to get the student body more involved

"It was basically a good school year and I feel we did achieve our goals. We did do the curriculum and the students seem more active, It's been a positive year," said Mr. Dan Farrell, principal

Supervision of students, the building budget, and implementation of policies and procedures were all handled by Mr. Farrell. Mr. Leroy Werkhoven, assistant principal, was in charge of the care of school facilities, student discipline, and student activities outside of school

Curriculum responsibilities, state and federal reporting, and keeping track of attendance was the job description for Mrs. Chris Kuhnly, assistant principal

Mr. Farrell, Mr. Werkhoven, and Mrs. Kuhnly were all in charge of staff evaluation

"Staff evaluation was basically checking up on teachers to see if they were teaching what they were supposed to be teaching," said Mr. Farrell

- Mr. Paul Shaeffer, Mrs. Margie Friberg, and Mr. Gary Jonson relax after a long day of counseling
- Mr. Don Brown business manager, Dr. Dennis Peterson, superintendant of achools, and Dr. Jan Marchbanks, assistant superintendant, smile about the conclusion of another year
- 3. Mrs. Nelda Sigurdson, Mr. Hugh Locker, Dr. James Albers and Mr. Norm Robertson make up the school board
- Mrs. Chris Kuhniy, Mr. Leroy Werkhoven assistant principals and Mr. Dan Ferrell, principal, take a break from planning the course outline and curriculum

English classes required; library used more readily

All FHS students were required to take at least six semesters of English. Freshmen and sophomores took one full year while juniors and seniors took at least one semester

Seniors who were college bound took Semantics and possibly Western Civilization. Non-college-bound seniors took Senior Composition. If a non-college-bound senior was in Advanced Journalism, this exempted Composition but not Semantics

Sophomores took Composition and Speech and Literature Exemptions for this requirement was a full year of Beginning Journalism, but only for the Composition and Speech class Literature had to be taken either way

"Other than that there was only one change in the English department. Mrs. Pat Wenke came to teach when Mrs. Marilyn Stuart left to teach at Vista," stated Mr. Joe Lenz, English department chairman

In the library, there was a new aide, Mrs. Marton Pottie

Library hours were used for the quietness and availability of resources

With senior honor pass periods available, the library was used more readily during class hours by seniors

According to Mrs. Susan Browne, librarian, the library received around $200 worth of books this last year

- Listening intently to the lecture during Composition and Speech is Ken Vuksan, sophomore
- 2. Reading a story or poem to the class, as Marcus Briscos sentor, is doing, is part of charing day in Creative Writing

Typewriters plug in class

Journalism was hectic, nerve-racking, sometimes hostile, and of course, a lot of fun

Journalism students with a push from their advisor, Mrs. Mary Seilo, sold football kick tickets, turkey raffle tickets, cheer towels, valigrams on Valentine's Day and sponsored a dance November 6 after the Bellingham game with the band Cathedral

Each student also had an advertising quota. This was approximately $326 for all three publications. If a student planned to receive as A grade, this quota had to be met.

Students filled a variety of roles including editors, reporters, advertising sales persons, advertising designers, photographers, artists, and a business manager

"With conflicting deadlines for Wings, Eagleye, and Aquila, there were often times there was too much to do. Then, afterwards, a short quiet period," said Joanna Nesbit, Aquila editor

With this in mind, the years theme phrase was, "As soon as the rush is over, I'm going to have a nervous breakdown, I worked for it; I owe it to myself and nobody is going to deprive me of it."

Editors for the monthly Eagleye were Lori Hehr and Renee Troutner. Wings, the feature publication, was coedited by Leah Nichols and Darlene Imhof. Aquila editors were Joanna Nesbit and Julie Reimer

Junior nightmare is over

The junior nightmare was over. Civics—that dreaded class was no longer required

According to Mrs. Barbara Elsner, former civics teacher, it was not required because a new, senior, year-long requirement, Current World Problems, was introduced. Civics and CWP made for an overbalanced program so Civics was made optional. Many students were relieved they didn't have to sign up

"I didn't want to," said Dennis Imhof, "it sounded too hard." Others did want to and were disappointed with news of it no longer being offered at all because of not enough people signing up

"I really miss it," said Mrs. Elsner "I enjoyed teaching it."

According to Nate Bacon, senior, "I thought civics was a good program. I thought juniors should have taken it because it helps a person become more aware of how the government works and how a person can become involved in it."

Current World Problems according to Mr. Max Boekenoogen, head of the social studies department, was a misleading name. It dealt more with history and geography. It was set up in six week increments with seniors changing teachers three times during the semester.

According to Mr. Boekenoogen people complained a lot in the beginning but less as the program progressed

- Listening attentively to Mr. Gates lecture during U.S. History is Darol Edie, sophomore.
- While George Veliz, sophomore, appears to be paying attention, Jeff Wynne and John Muder, Juniors, find something amusing to laugh about during U.S. History
- Looking very bored by a lecture from Mr. Harriman during history class are Tim Mann, senior, Dennis Hawkins and Cliff Cultee, sophomores
- 4. Relaxed is the way Kerri Martin, junior, listens to Mr. Belben as he explains the eight stages of man during psychology

Science classes available; more math classes here

Science classes had everything going from disecting frogs to making peanut brittle, as students chose college bound or non-college courses College-bound students who wished to have the maximum science background took the following freshmen, Introductory Science or Physical Science; sophomores, Biology 1 and 2; juniors, Chemistry 1 and 2; seniors, Physica 1 and 2.

Non-college bound students still wishing to have a general science background followed the sequence of freshmen, Physical Science; sophomores, Physical Science; juniors, Introductory Science; seniors, Chemistry or Physics

The minimum number of science courses required to graduate was two. Students could meet the science course requirements by taking one full year of agriculture science and another science course

The big change for the math department was the addition of pre-calculus class available to college-bound students who had already finished the available math classes.

Recommended for the college-bound students was three years of math. In add tion, students were encouraged to take Computer Concepts and Computer Programming sometime after the completion of Algebra 2.

Vocational classes offered

Many classes were offered to students interested in vocational and occupational areas. The departments were agriculture, business, and home and family life, industrial arts, and D O

The business courses were offered as strictly year long courses. This policy was instituted to bring enough continuity to the courses so that they would have been worthwhile

Mr. Bill Roberts, department chairman, felt that ideaty it would have been nice to have year long courses in the vocational area too

Mr. Roberts main goal for the year was to bring computers to all the departments for training purposes and safety reasons

The goal of the agricultural department was to prepare students with a marketable skill upon completion of high school. Included were small engine repair, welding, equipment fabrication, landscaping, forestry, greenhouse orientation and production agriculture

The goal of the home and family life department was to provide students with entry level skills which would prepare them for further training in career-related goals, Areas such as child care, food and nutrition, interior design and clothing related fields

Art has many classes; no money stops bowling

Frogs, flowers, and birds were all made in the many different art classes available to students

The foundation for the art classes were the first stages of study. Lettering and Design, and Pottery were offered to all beginning students

Classes offered to show the skills and interests necessary to continue to more advanced studies included Drawing and Painting and Sculpture

Third stage classes developed the skills learned American Art History, Sculpture 2 and Drawing and Painting 2 were offered

The final stage of art classes available was Advanced Art Workshop. These classes were for individuals who wanted to study at a more advanced level

Students were required to take two semesters of basic PE skills in their freshman year. It was designed to provide students with a broad introduction to fundamental skills related to sports activities.

After basic PE, students could choose between general intermediate classes or specialized classes. Soccer, basketball, volleyball, wrestling, and weight training were some one-semester special classes offered

Lifetime Sports was a class offered with bowling first semester but due to transportation costs and budget cuts, was cancelled second semester, included was golf, pickleball, badminton, and archery

- Pottery, in which Susan Highly, senior, works on hers, is one of the many art classes offered.

Foreign cultures learned; musical experience gained

Expressing oneself in a foreign language and through music was achieved in classes such as French, German, Spanish, band, choir, and orchestra

Culture, language, and songs were taught in the foreign language classes

"We spent a lot of time playing vocabulary games that helped us learn our Spanish words and made the class twice as fun," said Caroline Bernard, junior

Janelle Zatrine, senior, Lorenda Hand, junior, and Audrey Schlagle, sophomore, went to Germany as exchange students to increase their knowledge of German. Mark Nichola, senior, was an exchange student in Spain.

Orchestra class required prior experience on a stringed instrument. About 15 pieces of music were learned and performed at concerts. Several band members performed with the orchestra at Vespers for full orchestra effect.

Girls glee, concert choir, and swing choir were fun but demanding classes. Students in these classes generally worked hard learning choral music for the various concerts in which they performed. Mr. Garry Potts, director, also taught students to eight read better and how to take pride in a performing group

The cadet band and the senior band class combined to form the FHS marching band which performed at football games and wowed judges at contests

Special classes offer help

Title IVA, study skills, special ed, and special services provided extra academic help for those needing

Over 60 students took advantage of Title IVA: federal funds provided to give Indian students extra academic help. They received tutoring and instruction in study skills

Indian culture was stressed in reading materials and by guest speakers covering topics of interest to Indian students. Lummi tradition and other subjects were studied as special projects

Study skills was taken by about 70 students. Counselors acreened those with low performance records but high potential so those taking it would be those most willing to improve

Mr. John Lackey's students "made lots of progress because they used time wisely," he said

One goal of Mrs. Juanita Bravard was doing away with the bad connotations of the word "special ed." The class actually is "a special program where special people receive special attention," said Mrs. Bravard

Teaching basic skills in math and reading helped those with learning disabilities. Work experience in the cafeteria, bus garage, or other jobs was also part of the program

Mr. Bruce Walker taught special services, the class for mentally handicapped students. Vocational skills, such as assembly skills one would use in a factory, were taught. Students learned reading and basic math skills on computers

- Mrs. Lynda Solberg, Mrs. Pat Nasburg, Mrs. Carol Greene, Mrs. Cynthia Williams, and Ms. Michelle Wilson are instructors for Title IVA
- 2 Mickey Davis is working on his math in Mr. Walker's class.

Sophs have many ways of expressing themselves

People expressed themselves in many different ways. A painting, a sculpture, playing the piano, or turning out for football were just a few examples

"I play the string base. I guess music is the way i express myself," explained Doug Johnson, "I'm sort of quiet and my mom says I talk through my music," he added

According to Jim Peterson his way of expressing was through music also— the piano

"I like to express myself through my clothes," Karen Altons stated

Brett Nichola way of expression was through pole vaulting while Krista Eshuis's way was through softball and flags & rifles

"I express myself by doing well in school and by acting," Sarah McMillan said. She was in a couple of community and school plays in Missoula, Montana where she lived before coming to Washington

Besides self expression there were other types of expression such as emotional and facial. These were seen all over the school— boredom, frustration, and a happy smile. An occasional, lone person could be seen by himself in the hallway or library

- Hanging out in sophomore hall during lunch is a popular activity for Shawn Lee, Rick Beck and Steve Burgler, sophomores
- Tammy Williams, sophomore, shows her spirit during a pepassembly.
- 3. During the league Cross-Country meet, in which FHS girls placed fifth, Julie Klapperich leads one of the packs.

Sophomores sailed through Homecoming week 'In the Air'

Sophomores were "In the Air Tonight" as they celebrated Homecoming 1981

They participated in the class competition outside which included liconice eating and running around the track in a people chain and took fourth place

Entering sophomore half was entering through a cloud. It was decorated with purple, black, and white streamers, clouds with silver stars hanging from the ceiling, and black helium balloons floating around, including one with "Garfield" in it, were up. They placed second in half decorating behind the seniors. Tammi Pedersen was the half decorating chairperson

A purple, hot air balloon sailed through the air Homecoming night, as that's what the sophomores had on their float. The royalty, princess Traci McBride and her escort Eric Graves, stood in the balloon's silver basket as the float moved around the track. Michelle Lovett was head of float building

Sophomores were in the spirit of dressing up. Kim Sadler, Wendy Kellar, and Regina Schadler were among the many who took part

Traffic Safety crowded and minus one teacher

One hundred and twenty-five students each semester were in Traffic Safety Education

This year there was only one teacher for TSE, Mr. Vic. Randall taught only PE classes instead of TSE as in previous years. This left Mr. Ray Ramsey as the only TSE teacher

Mr. Jim Sterk was the TSE aide. Mr. Sterk helped out in the aimulators and during class. "Mr. Randall still helped with TSE, but not during school hours. He drove with kids after school," said Mr. Ramsey

Some of the units studied were drinking and driving, motorcycle safety, and overall safety

Students got to actually drive in the class. They were on the road four times and on the driving range eight times. They were in the simulators 5 times

The price of TSE was $40. "We never had any trouble with people goofing around," said Mr. Ramaey, "because most people can't afford to have to take the class over again,"

"Traffic safety wasn't very hard, but there was a lot of homework," said Tammy Leland, sophomore

"Driver's Ed was fun, especially because I got my license," said Jill Arestad, sophomore

Sophomores express spirit through rings and flowers

Class rings were the major concern of the sophomore class officers. They also bought the flowers for Baccalaureate according to Dani Ford, president.

Other officers were Ken Madero, vice president, and Anthony Bozanic, secretary-treasurer. Their advisors were Miss Beth Youngquist and Mr. Frank Medeanis

Other than expressing their school spirit, sophomores also had to express their intellect. They had to fulfill three specific course requirements. They were Sophomore Composition and Speech, Sophomore Literature, and U.S. History.

Sophomore Composition and Speech was considered a useful class by many. "I thought it was a good class but I didn't do well it it," said Mary McCarty

"Sophomore Literature was boring and useless," said Erik Brikeland. Many sophomores also could not see the need in reading the classics

Sophomorea also took Traffic Safety Education taught by Mr. Ray Ramsey. "I'd been looking forward to driving since freshman year," said Kristen Jonasson.

Other sophomores took Biology, Geometry and PE but to most TSE was the most important class they took

- Randy Burger, Carol Staats, and Jeff Reinke, sophomores, seem to lack an enthusiastic attitude toward their U.S. History class.
- 2. Lisa Lindell finds time to just sit during Beginning Journalism.
- Sophomore class officers are Anthony Bozanic, secretary-treasurer; Dani Ford, president; and Ken Madero, vice president.

Sophomores give effort but outcome not best

The class of '84 put a lot of spirit into the class competitions, even though the outcome was not always on top

Homecoming competitions held in October found the class placing fourth in the outside events. The best performance from the class came in the "people roll" contest. The sophomores rolled themselves out to a first place victory. Traci McBride thought that the sophomore class did "just as good as the senior class if not better." She made the comment that she didn't think that the judging was fair

Among other competitions during the year, Lance Friberg helped the class win first place by having the biggest feet in the school. Friberg along with Diane Merrifield also placed first in the football hike

Lynn Sager felt that the sophomore class really stuck together, whether they were winning or losing

"Fantastic," "awesome," and "superb" were some of the words used by many sophomores to describe their class spirit.

- Eric Hulsman, Lynn Sager, Erin Meyer, Tammy Pederson, Brian Loney, Darrin York and Denise Wydur help lead the sophomore class around the track during Homecoming week class competition.
- Diane Merrifield concentrates on catching the ball hiked from Lance Friberg for class competition at a football pep assembly.

Varsity football.

Eagles have a good season but fall short in play-offs

The varsity football team began its year with a loss to Arlington but came back and defeated the next eight teams they met

Four of the Golden Eagles' opponents, Mt. Vernon, Anacortes, West Vancouver and Stanwood remained scoreless. Yet in the Sedro Woolley game FHS was behind 24-6 at halftime. According to Mr. Ron Cowan, assistant coach, they made some adjustments that allowed the Eagles to shut down the Cubs' offense and kept them from scoring. With scores from seniors Greg Ebe, John Swobody, and John Locker, the Eagles came from behind to win 26-24. Coach Tom Manke described the game as "the greatest win in my years of coaching at Ferndale."

A triumph over Burlington put FHS into the mini-play offs, but the next week's loss to Bellingham killed the Eagles' hopes for the Northwest League Championship

Four days after the Bellingham game, FHS went into the mini-playoffs (to break a three way tie for secondplace between FHS, Bellingham and Arlington.) They were again defeated by Arlington in the first game

Overall the Golden Eagles fied for second place

- Matt Berger and Bill Moss rejoice at the September 25 Sedro Woolley game.
- 2. Team members are row 1: Norm Thompson, assistant coach, Jim Sterk, assistant coach; Tom Hull, Ken Altona, Tor Hansen, Gary Marks, Lynn Thomas, Greg Ebe, Jim Taxdahl, John Locker, John Swobody, row 2: Duke DeLapp, Keith Hanson, Allen Seaney, Bichard Arriola, Greg Finkbonner, William Moss, Steve Eillot, Mike Pederson, Tom Erickson, Jeff Daws, Scott Locker, Matt Berger, Todd Pomeroy, Ken Downey, Jeff Barrett, Robert Ridpath Wes Blaiock, row 3 Geoff Davis, David Dunn Marcus Larsen, Jeff Marks, Jeff Reinke, Even Svedin, Don Linrud Roger Witkinson, Eric Hulsman, Eric Graves, Andy Bash, Jim Wilderson, Shannon Cline, Coach Tom Manke.
- 3. John Swobody, quarterback, keeps the ball out of the Sedro Woolley Cubs' pays
- 4. FHS team members tackte a Bellingham Red Raider during the November 6 game

JV needs practice time; Frosh season looks great

Finishing the season with a 3-4 record the JV team continued its losing streak

According to Coach Ron Cowan, the problem was that the JV team didn't get a chance to practice. They worked with the varsity team to improve its game

"They were a very talented group of people, but we didn't get a chance to practice and bring out that talent," he said

The last game against Burlington was the highlight of the year. Although they lost, a super defense by FHS kept the score 8-10 in overtime

Ken Downey, junior, said "I wish we could have beaten Burlington. That would have given us a winning season."

Coach Bill Daws wasn't sure how good his freshman football team would be. But with a 5-1 record they went above and beyond his expectations

"They were a good group to work with, improving every game," said Coach Daws

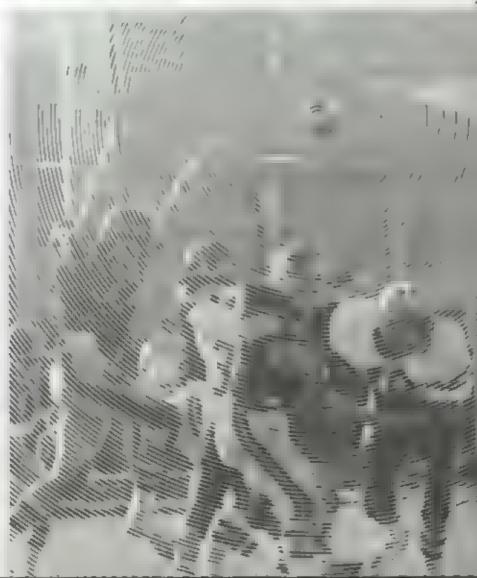

Proof of this was when they beat Burlington with two key players, Duff McBride and Rob Kinney, on the injured list

Twin Slaughters had a hand in the winning season Jeff and Jim Slaughter, twin brothers, played guard and tackle.

Mark Martin is undefeated in dual cross country meet

"The boys cross country team was one of the best FHS has ever had," said Coach Jim Pearson

Mark Martin, junior, stayed in the limelight all season as he went into the league meet undefeated. He then placed fourth in the league and 14th in the district

The team gained two frosh, Greg McAlpine and Todd Boothe, referred to as "the midgets" who could beat over half the runners in the league

The team accomplished their goal of placing higher than both Beilingham and Sehome

The girls found it impossible to live up to their previous reputation

They lost their first meet ever to Bellingham and Sehome but came back later in the season to soundly beat Bellingham

The girls team lost three top people from the year before and two veteran runners were unable to help out the team as usual. Joanna Nesbit, senior, injured a foot and Deann Boeringa, senior, came down with mono, both early in the season. Laura Nicholson, senior, and Deanna French, Junior, both had good seasons placing 14th and 16th in the league French was awarded most improved runner.

- Greg McAlpone and Todd Boothe race through the mile mark on the FHS course while Coach Jim Pearson lets them know their times.
- 2 Mike Martin, team manager keeps team members entertained.
- 3 Team members are row 1: Greg McAlpine, Todd Boothe Aaron Brainard, Mark Martin, Todd Lingbloom, Dennis Imhof, Mike Martin; row 2: Dawn Bruce, Jim Markowicz, Julie Klapperich, Jeff Moyes, Deann Boerings, Laure Nicholson, Joenna Nesbit, row 3 Judy Chapin, Deanna French, Nate Sacon, Jim Peterson, Dan Maines, Greg Hansen, Randy Schnackenberg, Kendall Bowser David Dow, Ken Meck, Jim Pearson, Dani Ford
- B. Mark Martin, junior, leads the way to the finish in which he best Sellingham's Eric Anderson.
- Deanna French, junior, demonstrates why she got most improved female runner

Positive, successful season for the volleyball team

"Our most outstanding season ever!" was how Ms
Terri McMahan, varsity volleyball coach, described her team. "It was a positive, successful experience."

The girls finished with a league record of 14-2 and were tied with Burlington for first place. A loss to Burlington then put them in second place in the district championships. This became the second year in a row for the team to take second place

According to Ms. McMahan, this year was the first time for a girls sport to make it to state. "Girls have gone separately in other sports, but never as a team," she explained

At state the girls played five matches and won one "We played very well and made it in to the top 10 in the state," said Ms. McMahan.

Tanya Rekers, Delinda Wilson, Julie Bergschneider, June Hanson, and Rita Beck, seniors, did the most for the team, said Ms. McMahan

- Tanya Rekers, senior, stame the ball over the net as June Hanson, senior, stays ready for the return during the Burlington game.
- 2 The 1981-82 varsity volleyball players are row 1: Julie Bergschneider, Delinda Wilson, Tracy Nordby, Rita Beck, June Hanson; row 2: Traci Brown, Anita Rekers, Tanya Rokers, Jill Peterson, Coach Terri McMahan
- 3. Serving the ball during the Burlington game is Delinda Wilson,
- 4. Definds Wilson, Julie Bergschneider, Tanya Rekers, and June Hanson, seniors, spend time getting warmed up for the game against Burlington which FHS lost

Hardworking describes JV volleyball team attitude

"Hardworkera" and "good attitude" described the 1981 JV volleyball team according to Coach Jan Cunningham. That attitude earned them a 12-6 season

"We did okay," said Coach Cunningham. "They worked well together."

The team was very young, it consisted of one sophomore and five freshmen. According to Coach Cunningham it was the best group of freshmen FHS ever had

Their skill level was very high for being as young as they were. According to varsity volleyball coach Terri McMahan and Coach Cunningham they had worked with the freshmen as eighth graders up at Vista Middle School in the Sports Club. As a result, they came in as freshmen knowing things that the seniors didn't learn until their sophomore year. Coach Cunningham said they were already spiking the ball in the second week of turnout

As to highlights, Coach Cunningham said there wasn't just one highlight, but that they definitely did improve with every game

Laurie Medcalf, freshmen, said, "We learned to work as a team better."

"The whole team had a good spikes," said Toni Williams, freshman, "I myself had better sets at the end of the season."

- While Toni Williams, freshman, and Traci Nordby, junior, are ready to help. Monique Rekers, freshman leaps to spike the ball over the net
- 2. Set for the return of the ball are Traci Nordby, junior, Toni Williams, Nadine Thompson
- 3 Members of the 1981 JV volleyball team are row 1: Laurie Medcatf, Toni Williams, Traci Graves; Row 2: Coach Jan Cunningham, Donna Whitliams, Nadine Thompson, Monique Rekers Laura Nason

Varsity boys improve a lot

"School and community support were really appreciated this year," said Coach Loren Anderson. "It helped the team out a lot." He was speaking of boys varsity basketball

The team had a "solid" 8-12 record. "Solid" to Mr Anderson, is to act and play with confidence and to be predictable on the court. "Solid" is what he wanted all his players to be.

The goals differed from player to player to coach Coach's goals were to have the players play to potential, and if they did that, then winning wasn't important Jim Reavis, junior, said his goals were to make all-league and for the team to make districts. Most important to Lance Friberg, sophomore, was to make varsity and, maybe, start

The one thing the team and the coach all agreed on was the highlight of the year-beating Bellingham on their home court!

"What made it great was they were predicted to kill us and we came back and beat them," said Reavis

"There is such a rivalry between the two schools, that is was really great beating them," said Phil Umbaugh, senior.

Mr. Anderson wasn't surprised by the win, "They played good bail, good defense, rebounded well; they never surprised me," he said.

Coach Anderson looks forward to an even better season next year. "A lot of kids will carry over to next year and we'll have a little more experience," he said

- While Meridian trys to stop him, Larry Watkins, senior, goes up for two points.
- The 1981-82 varsity boys basketball team is row 1. Greg Finkbonner, Tim Senger, Mike Harksell, Philip Umbaugh, Jack Wells, Eric Zatrine; row 2: Larry Watkins, Jim Reavis, Lance Friberg, Tom Erickson, Mike Pedersen, Roger Wilkinson, Coach Loren Anderson.
 - With Mike Pedersen, junior, looking on, Lance Friberg, sophomore, shoots for two points despite the Meridian player.
 - 4 While Jim Reevis, junior, and Tim Senger, senior, are ready for action Tom Erickson, junior, outjumps Arlington for the ball

Winning isn't everything

A weak defense, poor shooting, and the lack of rebounding spelled disappointment for the JV squad

Despite a 3-17 finish, Coach Mike Kirk didn't feel the season was a total loss. "We had talent evenly distributed," he said. "Even though we didn't play as well as we should have every time out, we were in a lot of games." he added

Even though the team didn't progress as Coach Kirk had hoped they would, he still felt he had a good team "They were a great bunch of guys," he stated. "Some showed progress towards varsity."

Despite having the shortest team in the league, the frosh basketball team was able to make some big plays count as they posted a 3-7 league record. While winning two of their three overtime games, Coach Paul Schaeter felt winning wasn't the most important thing

"Our number one goal wasn't to win all the games", he said. "To have fun gives the players more experience."

Varsity girls do their best

"To do the best that we could do at all times" was the goal for the girls' varsity basketball team, said the new coach. Sharon Strengholt. The girls' varsity team slipped to a 5-15 record while trying to accomplish this goal

"This was a rebuilding year for our team," Coach Strengholt said. "We had four seniors, but new coaches. The girls had to learn all over again with different coaching techniques, and different terminology," she added

Highlighting this year were wins over Arlington and Stanwood

"Everybody just started getting along and playing as a team, not as individuals," said Linda Anderson, senior

"I think we reached our goal this year. We slways tried to do our best. Sometimes we slipped but we came right back," stated Coach Strengholt

Seniors were Misty Scott, guard; Linda Anderson, center; June Hanson, guard; and Cathy Pederson, forward

- 1 Linda Anderson, senior, guards her opponent as Cathy Pederson, senior tries to tie the score

- 4 Angely Hettings, Junior, shoots for two points.
- 5 "Whoosh" goes the ball over the head of an Arlington Eagle after being shot by June Hanson, senior. Linds Anderson, senior, decides her next move

Many basketballs bounce from morning to night

Miss Chris Bierlink took over the job as the new JV girls basketball coach. The JV team consisted of 13 players who Coach Bierlink attempted to bring together as a winning team

She attempted but was not very successful as the girls had what they would not call a winning season according to Veronna Pameroy and Pam Reynolds who played guards on the team

"We needed to get used to the way she coached," said Tracy Braves, freshman

"When I took the job, I wanted to get into the program and get to know some of the girls," said Coach Bierlink "winning games wasn't the question at the beginning. I needed to know what I could teach them."

Though the outcome of their season wasn't what the coach or players had hoped for, it was still enjoyable

"Were a young team, they like playing and I like coaching, we will improve," she said

An important role in a organized school sport is the coaching staff, intramural basketball was not a fully organized. It consisted of eight teams, six to 10 players of students and teachers, who played every Wednesday and Thursday before school

The season last through the month of January and February.

"It is good that the school can have something like this for the people who can't or don't want to play on the school team and just have fun," said senior Neal Walker

Gymnasts have best year

"I can't say anything negative about this years team. It was the best team I've ever had the pleasure to coach," said Coach John Stump

The team had a record of 5-8 Because in gymnastics there are eight events, the records were sometimes broken three or four times at a meet. In total the team broke 20 records

"The team was like a bunch of sisters helping each other." They gave really good support," said Laila Olaussen, senior

"One of our goals was to score in the 120's and we did at the beginning of the season. If we had a couple of more meets, we could have scored in the 130's," said Coach Stump

Another goal for the team was to send someone to state Olaussen competed at the state meet on the floor exercise and Cindy Chapin, senior, was a fore runner on the bars

Team Captain Michelle Meeks said, "We set our goals high this year and even though we didn't accomplish them all, we still have a lot to be proud of."

- Debbie Bottenberg, junior, poses during her routine on the balance beam.
- 2. Cindy Chapin, senior, prepares to dismount the beam.
- 3 Laita Olaussen, senior, files through a handspring with a full twist
- 4 Michelle Meeks, senior completes one of the requirements for her routine.
- Team members are row 1: Debbie Bottenberg, Michelle Meeks, Cindy Chapin, Laila Olaussen, Karen Downey; row 2: Debbie Thompson, Tracy Mertin, Coach John Stump, Sally Jefferson, Tina Louveau.

Bowlers fight for state title

Under the watchful eye of Coaches Jake Jacobas and Jackie Ulrich, the bowling teams faired well

The girls team, under captain Carolyn Elliott, senior, went all the way to state in first place. They beat last years' third place ranking. Ballard proved to be one of the toughest teams they competed with at state

The boys teams also did well. Coach Jacobas felt this was the first year they had a shot at state. With John Petty, senior, as captain, Mt. Baker I team took fourth place overall. Joe Hatzell, sophomore, took his Mt. Baker II to fifth place.

- Mark Wright, senior displays his bowling skills for some of his teamates.
- 2. Rick Arriola, junior, lets loose with a striking force
- 3. One, two, three, slide! Annie Finkbonner junior, bowls a strike with ease
- 4. John Petty, senior, seems to bowl quicker than the eye
- Mt. Baker girls team row 1: Tammy Boggess, Charmaine Fuller, row 2: Luann Morisette, Lynda Hoeruegel, Carolyn Elliott, Stephanie Davis

Four boys lead wrestlers

Four boys led the 1981-82 varsity wrestling team to their 5-6 season. They were Tom Hull, Anthony York, Chris Kenney, and Bruce Downey

"I expected our season to be better than it was, but we made a good effort and we made quite a lot of progress," said Coach Lee Andersen

Kenney, junior, led the team with the most pins, 25, and also the most wins. He won 31 out of his 36 matches. Kenney was also the only wrestler to participate in the state tournament which was held in Wapato.

Contributing greatly to the team were captains, Hull, York, and Downey, seniors

Injuries hurt the team. George Veliz, sophomore, suffered several throughout the season. Because of a sprained ankle, which he got at the regional tournament, he was unable to participate in the state tournament

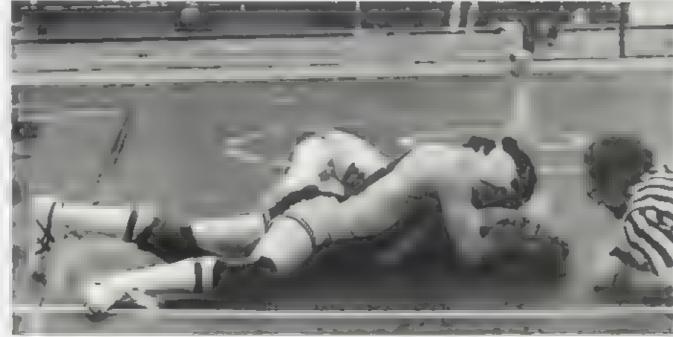

According to Coach Andersen the team didn't quite reach its goals

"It was a long season," said Coach Andersen. "It's not as long when you're winning," he added

Coach Andersen is looking forward to next season with many wrestlers returning, including three district placers

- Bruce Downey, senior, has his opponent in a headlock, ready for a take down
- 2. Going for a pin le Rob Kenney freshman
- 3. The 1981-82 varsity wreetling team are row 1 Heidi Satteriee manager, Brian Schweigart, Mike Campich, Chris Barnes, Rob Ridpath, Rob Kenney, Tobby Hull, and David Fos, manager; row 2: Bruce Pierre, Bruce Downey, Ken Downey, Tom Hull, Anthony York, Chris Kenney, Charles Osborne, Ed Wyler, and Coach Lee Andersen
- 4 Tobby Hull, sophomore attempts to get a Burlington wrestler into a gillatine
- 5 Ken Downey, junior, prepares his opponent for a take down in a credie
- Coach Lee Anderson, advises Bruce Downey In a problem.

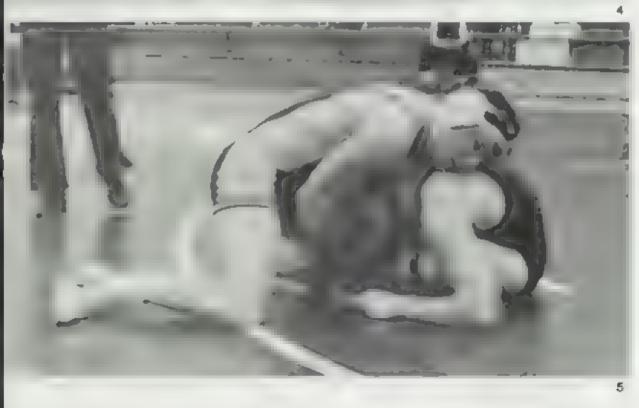

JV has outstanding season

The junior varsity wrestling team ended its season with a record of 9-2

The coaches of the JV wrestling team were Mr. Mike Guthrie and Mr. Tim Dougherty. The turnouts were split with Coach Lee Andersen concentrating mainly on the varsity team.

Many JV wrestlers tried periodically throughout the season to beat out varsity wrestlers in challenges

"There were a couple of boys who beat out varsity wrestlers but after a certain point, they concentrated mainly on JV," said Coach Guthrie. Challenging and winning seemed to be the goal of many of the JV wrestlers.

The JV team competed in a few tournaments. "We always seemed to do well at tournaments. We walked away with most of the marbles," said Coach Dougherty. The JV team also participated in the Blaine Invitational this season and placed sixth.

"We had a lot of talent this year on the JV team. Many JV wrestlers have a lot of potential for next year," and Coach Guthrie

The new idea of split turnouts will probably continue next year according to Coach Dougherty

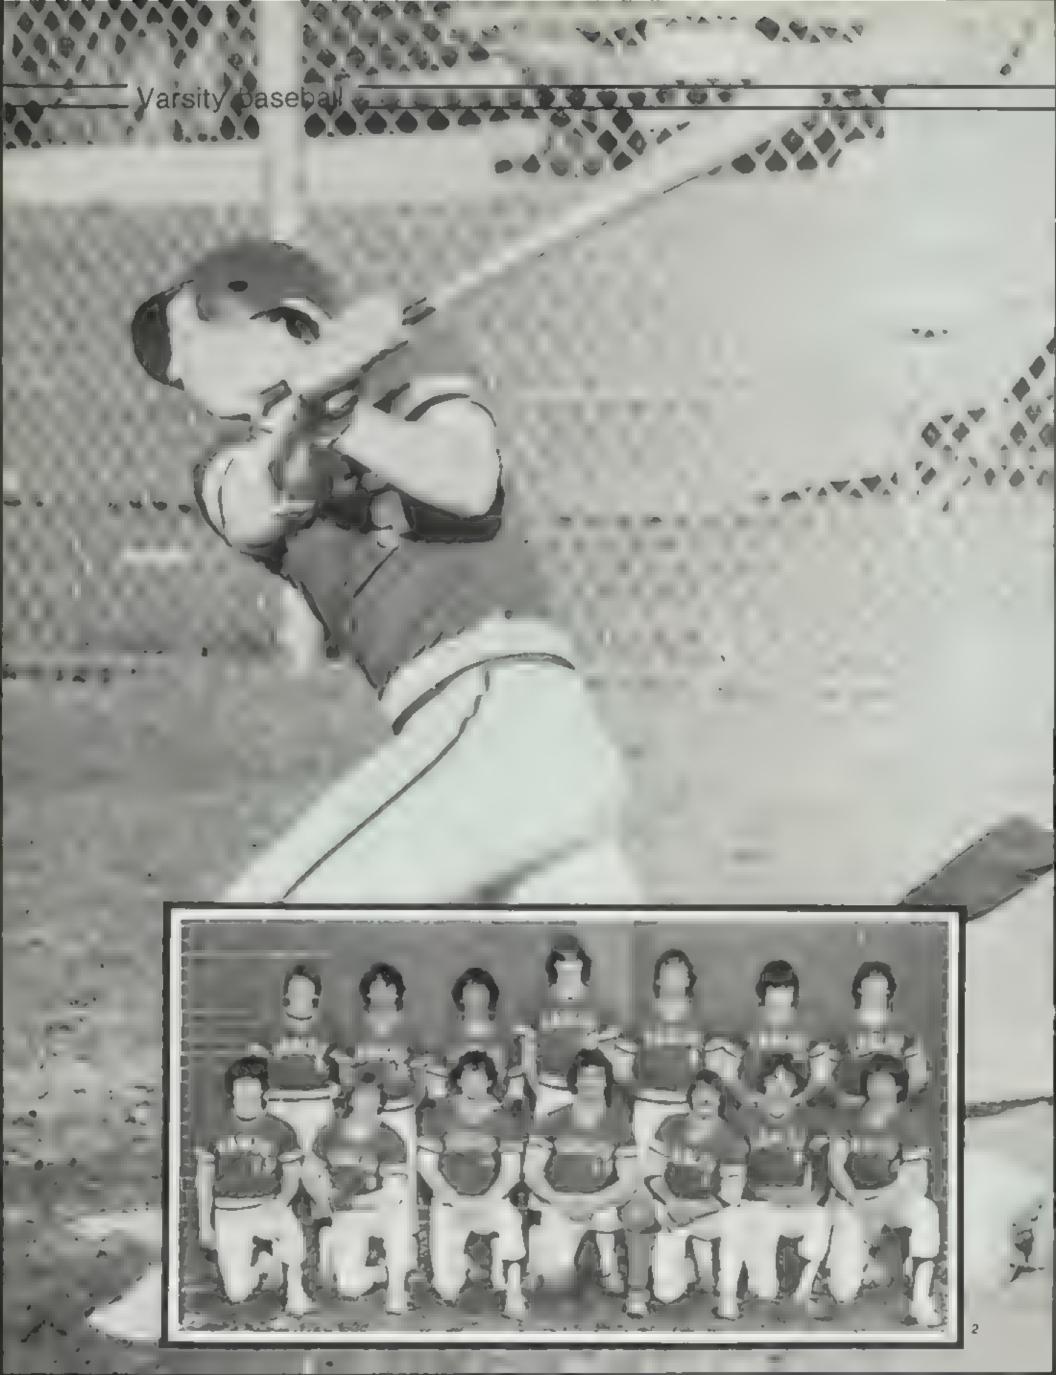

- 1. Sidney Patton, sophomore, tussels with his opponent
- Evan Svedin, cophomore, is watched closely by the referee as he comes close to scoring a pin.

Baseball team is strong in outfield and batting

"It was a very enjoyable year because the kids were fun and they always maintained good attitudes," said variety baseball coach, Kent Victor.

The season began with a non-league win against Blaine. With six returning varsity members and a new coach, the Eagles battled their way through the season.

Much help came from the strong defense played by the outfield, and with seniors John Swobody pitching and Greg Ebe catching, the infield was solid. When the opposing team would hit a fly ball, chances were one of the two Lockers, John or Scott, would be there for the catch

According to Jim Wilkerson, sophomore, a baseball team is not made up of an outfield alone, an offense is needed also. In this the team was not lacking. During a league game against Sedro Woolley, FHS was trailing 2-5. With the bases loaded, Ebe got a grand slam home run and tied the score

Mike Harksell, senior, Wilkerson, Swobody and the Lockers were also noted for their trips around the diamond

Other pitchers were Bill Erlich, Roger Wilkerson, sophomores, Matt Berger and Alan Cerny, juniors.

- f. Roger Wilkinson, sophomore, uses all his power to hit the ball.

JV teams develop talents

The JV softball and baseball teams started the spring season on a high note of optimism

The baseball team had 22 boys who were coached by Mr. Dave Guntler, According to Coach Guntler, they were one of the best hitting clubs in their league. They acheived a .423 batting average at the beginning of the 16-game season.

The girls softball team consisted of 18 girls who could play almost any position. "We had some very talented people. Everyone had a good attitude about playing where I asked them to play," said Coach Linda Hopper

They played against county schools and everyone had an opportunity to play. Both coaches agreed the objective of the JV teams was for everyone to have fun and gain experience for varsity. Most of the emphasis was placed on fundamentals and improvements of talents.

- Rob Kenny, freshmen, pitches in a game against Lynden Christian
- Mike Garcia, freehman, throws as someone tries to steal second base.

Softball season was a hit

Girls' varalty softball enjoyed another competitive season. With only five returning seniors the team was young, aggressive with stockpiles of talent. "For the first year we had more talented people than positions," said Coach Terri McMahan.

Team attitude was very positive, according to Coach McMahan. "They wanted to win," she said. Goals for the team were to finish in the top three in the Northwest League standings and the qualify for the district tournament

Defense was the team's strongpoint. "We strived to play good defense," said Coach McMahan. "If you play good defense, then you only have to score one run to win, right?"

In tournouts Coach McMahan atressed what she called the "basics" of softball Proper hitting, fielding, and base running techniques were considered the fundamentals of the game

Annette McFadden, senior, played this year because "I got to work on team goals as well as my own personal goals."

Golf season successful

"My home is Washington but I live in golashes," could have been the theme of the golf team

"It was kind of hard for us to turnout because we couldn't tell what this Washington weather would put out," said Coach Ray Ramsey, "but we stayed in there and hoped for the best, and the best we got."

At the beginning of the season, the team was picked by the Skagit Valley Herald to take the league. "When we got picked. I thought it might have some kind of effect on the team playing, but after those first matches, I could tell there would be no effects," said Neal Walker, senior

Walker, Steve Burger, Randy Burger, Mike LeCasse, Daran Nordlund and Mark Wright were usually seeded in the top six. Before every match, each player had a chance to move into the top six

Each team in the Northwest league had their five best players enter district. This gave every team a chance; if a team had played badly at the beginning of the year, they got another chance

Tracksters goals are set

"My main goal this year was everyone on the team would do their best. The team's goals were to go to districts and to qualify for state and do well," said Coach Jan Cunningham.

She said her other goals for the team of five seniors, six juniors, two sophomores, and three freshmen were to work hard, be dedicated, to respect other teams, and most of all to build confidence

Senior co-captains Joanna Nesbit and Delinda Wilson had other goals than Coach Cunningham, however.

"My main goal was to improve every year. This included qualifying for and doing well at State I felt I did improve, and Miss Cunningham was part of the reason I did," said Nesbit

Wilson, threw the javelin. Nesbit ran middle distances and relays. Sandy Chapin, senior, threw the shotput, discus, and javelin. Laura Nicholson, senior, ran the mile and the 800 meter. Jill Peterson, junior, ran sprints and relays. She anchored the 400 meter relay. Cindy Chapin, junior, had a pulled muscle which kept her out of the hurdle races. She ran the 400 meter and the mile relay instead.

"We had some really hard workers and were definitely competitive. The competition among the other schools was strong." said Coach Cunningham.

New track good for team

"The new track brought many changes to the track team. The track was very good for turnouts. The runners weren't hampered by the big mud puddles that used to gather on the track. People work harder and felt more comfortable not having to dodge puddles," said Coach Gary Jonson.

FHS was able to host the Northwest League meet Competitions had to deal with a few changes. The district was expanded so only the top four in the league were able to proceed to districts where they met the top four finishers from another AA league. The top four finishers then went from district to state.

Mr. Jonson liked the set up because, "It's possible to get more people to state."

Under the old system every school was able to put two competitors in the district meet and only the top two finishers were able to go to state

FHS also hosted a new meet called Northwest Relays. The meet was co-ed, both boys and girls could compete as a team

About 40 guys turned out. The track seemed to bring out more freshmen then usual. "The facility was more conducive to wanting to come out and participate," said Jonson

- Leaping to clear the bar in the high jump is Evin Svedin, sophomore, during the Anacortas meet.
- The sprinters are in the set position, ready to take off at the gun during one of their turnouts.
- Mike Scruggs, senior, battles out with his Bellingham competitors. Jeff Moyes, freshman is hot on their heels.

Cheerleaders I

Cheerleading not all fun

Being a cheerleader was not all fun and games and neither was being cheer advisor according to some cheerleaders.

A new process for selection of cheerleaders was established, instead of two separate squads there was only one squad consisting of eight girls. The rule originally stated the squad was to have 12 girls maximum, but not enough girls tried out so it was reduced to eight.

One reason for the few trying out according to Carmem Enyeart, senior, was "They expected too much out of eight girls especially during basketball and wrestling season."

Mrs. Cherie Crook, cheerleader advisor, has a different view point, "No system was going to make everybody happy. At least they were voted on ability and not popularity."

The 1981-82 cheerleaders attended a one week camp in Ellensburg at Central Washington University during the summer. The cheerleaders placed first overall by getting five superiors out of five.

Maybe the answer for an excellent outcome was, "They worked well together as one equad," said Mrs. Crook. But Enyeart tended to disagree. "We worked fine as a group because we had too. There was a lot of different personalities and interest so it was hard to agree."

Soccer team has good season, positive attitudes

A positive team attitude combined with players that "just never gave up" were all the ingredients needed to produce a winning season for the 1981 mens' soccer team.

"Our kids really played well," explained first year coach Mr Tim Smith. "They never gave up whether they were ahead or behind," he commented

Contributing to the winning cause was Colin Kennedy, junior, who had 14 goals this season Rick Arriola, junior, added 12 assissts for the team

Awards were presented to Captain Rick Arriola, Cocaptain Tim Smith, Jr.; most improved players, Gary Bailey and Joe Wyngaert. Most inspirational player went to David Fox and most valuable player awards were given to Erik Hohmann and Colin Kennedy

High lighting the season was the 3-0 shut out of the previously unbeaten first place team. That win knocked the unbeaten team into third place tie with the Ferndale team.

"The only weakness this team had was not having the opportunity to play more. They played stronger each game," Coach Smith said.

Expressions of freshmen are stifled by conformity

Were freshmen in general afraid to assert their individuality? Joann Vanderyacht and David Cullier said they believed so. Freshmen conformed, said Vanderyacht, "because they didn't want to feel out of place." She felt conformity was a barrier to self expression, "because everybody felt they had to be like everybody else—therefore, they weren't being themselves."

Cullier felt freshmen tried to conform more than upperclassmen because "they look up to bigger kids and want to be like them. "Freshmen didn't stand out as being different like many juniors and seniors," he said

Tony Stanovich said he always expressed his opinion. He told his opinions to his friends because "if you get the majority to agree with you, then changes will go your way."

On expressing anger Stanovich said, "I talk to somebody and explain my problem to see if they can help. I usually try not to take it out on anybody else. I chop wood or something to get it out of my system."

Freshmen are introduced to high school subjects

Freshmen were introduced to high school subjects starting with these requirements; freshman composition, freshman literature, Pacific Northwest History, and two semesters of PE

Freshman English consisted of one semester of each freshman composition and freshman literature. The classes covered organization of ideas, paragraphs, and short essays. Freshmen studied literature such as poetry, novels, and drams

Each freshman took one semester of Pacific Northwest history which covered from the first inhabitants to the 1980's. It gave students a better understanding of the state and surrounding regions

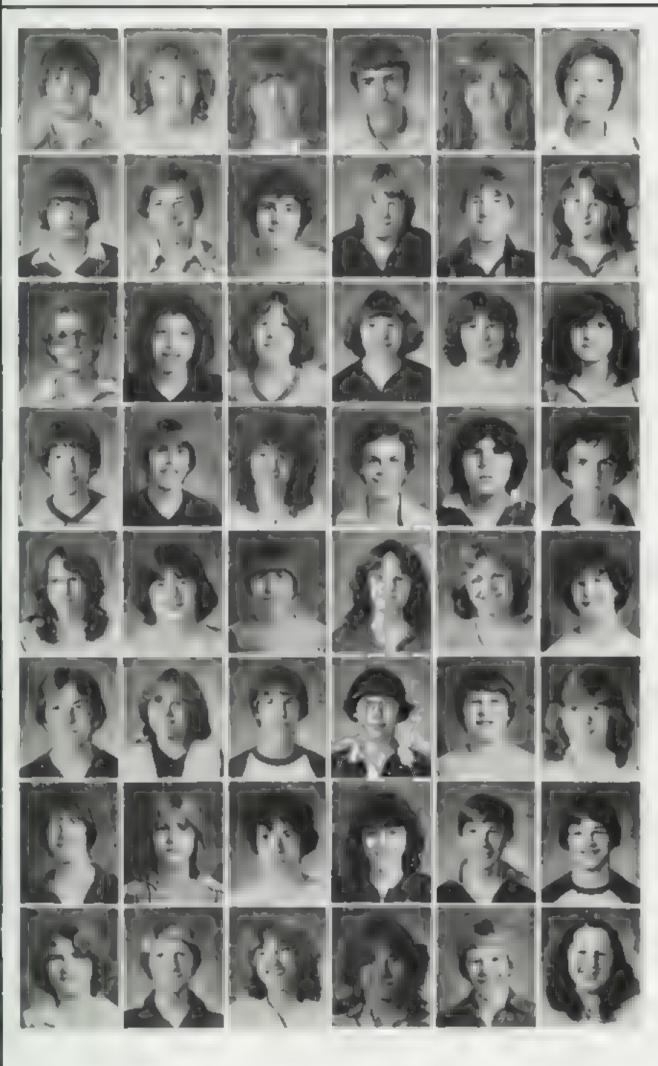

Health was another required course for freshmen They were taught CPR. They learned to handle stress and how drugs, alcohol, and tobacco affected the body

McBride, Rekers promote spirit in freshman class

Freshman class officers were Duff McBride, president; Monique Rekers, vice president, and Tina Louveau, secretary

Although they were not sure of their responsibilities, they did set some goals they wanted to accomplish

"My main goal was to promote spirit and pride in our class." stated Rekers

Freshmen really got it together for their first year, said Mr. Frank Hebert, freshman class advisor

At the first assembly of the year, freshmen tied for first with the seniors in the class competition. The competition was a treausre hunt and one of the 'treasures' that added up the points was Brian Schweigert who took first in the shortest person competition

The freshmen also took the tallest person with the help of Phil Taylor towering over the rest

During Homecoming they finished third in the overall class competition day. The pyramid was the race they aced, finishing minutes before the other classes

Frosh do well overall

The freshmen class overall did very well during Homecoming '81. The theme was "In the Air Tonight." Joy Rudig, freshman, was chairman of the Homecoming activities

In their hall they had streamers on the lockers and hanging from the ceiling. Clouds and stars also decorated their hall. Posters were on the walls with the theme on them.

The frosh float had moons and stars on it. Royalty were Tracy Graves and Duff McBride, Graves sat on the moon. The colors of the float were purple, lavender, and silver in class competitions during the week the freshmen took first place in pyramid building, fourth place in the people roll, third place in the water-in-bucket and lico rice eating and fourth place in halfs. Overall they took third place

"I think the class was well prepared. They all worked together well," said Mrs. Susan Browne, advisor

Freshmen endure first day

Expressions ... of fear, curiosity, confusion, and pride. These were seen on the faces of the freshmen class on the first day of school.

Fear was seen as the freshmen walked through sentor hall for the first time. Some walked down the middle of the hall, steering clear of garbage cans, while some avoided the half altogether.

Curiosity was expressed as the newcomers asked about their classes, senior stunts, school rules, and extra-curricular activities

Confusion was witnessed in their eyes—some more bewildered than others. Through the bustle of freshmen hall, muttles of "Do you know where health class is?"

"Where did my achedule go?"

"Where's room 35?" were heard

Pride showed through on the faces of some-pride to have made their own schedules, to walk through the halfs, to be out of middle school, and, most importantly, pride to be a student at FHS.

Competitions and parade part of homecoming week

The parade, competitions, planning, decorating and dressing up were all a part of Homecoming week

Dress up days were Monday: western/farmer; Tuesday: punk rock; Wednesday: celebrity; Thursday: toursit/Jamaican; and Friday: class competition day

The seniors won with juniors and sophomores fied for second and freshmen third for dressing up

The hall decorations were designed to fit the theme "In the Air Tonight." Seniors used balloons and paper baskets with the names of each person who owned the locker to represent a hot air balloon.

Sophomores decorated with cottonballs to give the impression of floating clouds

Juniors conveyed a sunset effect by decorating the entrance with orange paper

Freshmen had big paper clouds with the theme

The seniors placed first with sophomores in second and juniors third with freshmen in fourth again

No judging of the floats occurred because the junior float was vandalized before the parade

"I was really dissappointed when I found out the floats were disqualified. A lot of hard work and time had gone into making them," said Debbie McCall, senior "Let's hope this will be an example for the upcoming classes by the mistake we made."

- Julie Finkbonner, freshman dresses up for class competition day and the freshmen were babies.
- Obviously the guys take Homecoming more casually than the girls by wearing stacks and shirts while the girls are dressed in their long formals, dancing to the band Red Axe
- 3. Todd Young, senior, and Marc Border, junior, go all out to show their version of Punk rock styles
- 4. During the Anacortes game Curt Hawkins and Kathy Bozanic junior royalty, ride on the junior class float at half time
- 5 Multi-colored streamers and ballons earned Senior hall first

Royalty walks dark path

The Homecoming royalty entered the darkened gymnasium with only a spotlight on them. They walked through the doors and down the silver path to receive crowns and flowers. The whole student body voted on the king and queen, Rob Bowman and Misty Scott, sen-

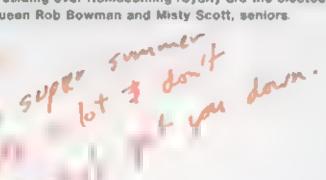

Annette McFadden and Jim Taxdahl were chosen princess and prince for the senior class. Junior class princess was Kathy Bozanic and her escort was Curt Hawkins, Tracy McBride was chosen sophomore class. princess and Eric Graves was her escort. The freshmen class voted Tracy Graves, princess, and Duff McBride. prince

"I was really surprised when I heard I was chosen. It was the highlight of my senior year," said McFadden

The decoration for the coronation assembly took advantage of the theme colors, purple, lavender, and silver. The center of the gym had a silver circular piece where the royalty was crowned. Along the walkway there were balloons that looked like pearls

To break the serious mood, the FTD man (Daran Nordland) came prancing up the aisle to the king and queen, bowing and giving a rose to Scott

Christmas ___

Pinatas, food, toy drives add to Christmas cheer

Christmas time was full of activities. Students displayed their generosity and spirit in many different ways.

The Marine-sponsored "Toys for Tots" drive was run by the Honor Society. Numerous barrels of new and nearly-new toys and games overflowed onto the civics room floor

The food drive was a success with over $550 worth of food contributed. Mr. Max Bookenoogens' class won an all-you-can-eat ice cream feed for their contribution.

"Fairly good" was the way Mrs. Jadene Rudig described the door decorating competition. She judged the competition along with Mrs. Jewell Nelson. Only a few classes participated with Mrs. Juanita Bravard's class being the winners.

In keeping in the Christmas spirit, Mr. Herb Porter's Spanish classes held a traditional Mexican posada and made piñatas. Along with the usual pigs, stars, and angels were such originals as coke and beer cans, a "Mr. Yuk" sticker, and even a "Garfield"

- 5 The winners of the Valentines Assembly are seated in a heart shaped formation.

Tolo takes off in new stride

Tolo's theme Saturday, March 20, was Tropical Paradise. The colors consisted of sunset orange and yellow on a blue-green background. This was completely different from the traditional sweetheart Tolo held around Valentine's Day. The cheerleaders who sponsored the dance engaged Airborne to play.

Tolo was advanced to March 20 for many reasons, according to Mrs. Cheri Crook. There was a music contest going on during Valentine's week along with the wrestlers going to state

"I think March 20 will be the date for every year," stated Mrs. Crook

"Tolo affects so many students and all the activities that went on that week, it was better that it was changed," she said

Another feature was Spring Fever Days preceding Tolo March 17 was dress up for St. Patricks Day and the 18 was tropical dress-up day

In their initial plans, the cheerleaders hoped people would buy Leis and orchids to go along with the theme

Tolo royalty selected by the student body was crowned during the dance. Their names were kept secret until the crowning Election of the royalty was held during Spring Fever Days.

- 1. Ordering a nosegay for Tolo is the only thing Jim Taxdahi, senior, has to pay for
- 2. Tropical Paradise is the Thems for the Tolo, held in March rather than February.
- 3 All state band qualifiers are Joe Granger, Nate Bacon and George Drapeau seniors
- 4 Doug Johnson and David Olson, sophomores, Spencer Nelson, and Tony Gault juniors, are the qualifiers for all state orchestra.
- All-state choir qualifiers are Staria Schroeder, Phil Umbaugh, Liss Edwards, Lori Crawford and Eric Conzelman, seniors.
- Outstanding male and female athlete of the year are Greg Ebe and Joanna Nesbit, seniors.

Foreign exchange students

Exchange students arrive to learn the ways of FHS

FHS was a place of international flair as it hosted foreign exchange students from France, Japan, Germany, and Mexico throughout the year.

At the beginning of the year Arnaud Godefrey and Muriel Allemend arrived from France. Their stay was short as in November they moved on to Seattle

Also in September, Tarko Vamazaki arrived from Asahikawa, Japan. His biggest problem was communication. With only four months of English-speaking experience, conversations were difficult but interesting

December 15, Yoli Andrade arrived on the scene from Hermositlo, Sonora, in northern Mexico English dame pretty easy to her

February 13 six arrived from Oberstorg, Germany They were Jutta Lang, Manuela Kasapis, Gudrun Jung, Anita Puhretmaier, Susi Schmidt and Uta Greiner

One of the big differences the German girls noticed was the clothing styles. "In Germany we don't wear wide bottom jeans. We wear longer, bulkier sweaters, and we dress a lot more in layers," said Schmidt

- Susi Schmidt, German exchange student, gets prepared for semantics class.
- 2 Arnaud Godefrey spends part of the year at FHS as an exchange student from France
- 3. Yoll Andrade, Mexican exchange student, studies English In senior English class
- 4. The German exchange students are Suei Schmidt, Manuela Kasapis, Anita Ruhretmaler, Uta Greiner, Gudrun Jung, and Jutta Lang
- 5. Taiko Yamazaki works on algebra during class.
- 6. Gudrun Jung starts the day with a sandwich in semantics

Participation makes events special for the student body

Knowledge Bowl competition was a new academic experience. This event, sponsored by the Educational Service District 189, took place three times throughout the year. Mrs. Barbara Elsner and Miss Beth Youngquist coached the teams

Skagit Valley Community college hosted the first and third competitions December 21 and March 29. The second competition was held at Everett High School January 25

Teams were made up from those students who participated in tryouts after school. These tryouts waged individual against individual with those scoring the highest being selected for teams

Second and fifth place were the honors brought back from the first competition by the two competing teams. At the second competition the three FHS teams placed fourth, seventh, and ninth.

Just as Knowledge Bowl was special to those who participated, so were the special assemblies special to those who participated. The five special assemblies included the rock concert by Freefare October 12, the concert by the Army Band January 12, a preview of the play September 29, the "A matter of Time" presentation March 23, and the moving up assembly, May 28

Special assemblies were more numerous than in the past years said Mr. Leroy Werkhoven, assistant principal. This was because of the mature response of the student body toward the assemblies he explained

- Knowledge Bowl participants Laurie Hueman, senior; David Osgood, sophomore, and Robert Funk, senior; laugh as Craig Willis Junior is stymied by a zinger during practice
- Jim Peterson, sophomore; Nate Bacon, senior; Debbie Braithewaite, junior; and Backy Elliot sophomore; practice for the upcoming competition.
- 3 Suave and sophisticatedly awaiting the next question are Nate Bacon and Debbie Braithewaite
- 4. Freefare's lead singer regretfully informs us that he has "Too much time on his hands."
- 5. "Fame" is performed by the New Sounds of the Northwest."
- 6. Strutting his stuff is Freefere's bassist.

Special Assemblies ==

Assemblies show variety

Variety was strived for in the pep assemblies. The first assembly was aimed at student involvement and had a class competition treasure hunt. "Tallest person," "shortest hair," "Longest fingernails," and "biggest feet," were a few treasures to find from each class

At an outdoor assembly the band, Oasis, played a few hits. Daran Nordlund and Rob Bowman, getting a chance to ham it up, directed a funeral for the Burlington Tigers

In an attempt to hold student interest, athletes spoke for their sport in place of having the coaches talk

Keeping the class competition acores going throughout the year was another effort put forth at the pep assemblies. People were stomping their feet, keeping time as a Hill Billy tune was sung, to stir up enthusiasm against the Bellingham Red Raiders.

Different types of class competition were also used at the psp assemblies. A football hike, pie throwing contest, treasure hunt, people roll, and licorice chew were a few of the unusual events issued to tally up the points

Thunderstorm was used to get the student body to participate

Clubs participated by organizing skits for the different assemblies such as the journalism skit to help promote their cheer towels

- FHS spirit patrolled games and helped boost morale at assembles during football season.
- In an attempt to make cheer towels a hot item, Mrs. Mary Sello, Lori Hehr, and Renee Troutner put on a skit decreeing the quick, massive sale of the towels.
- 3 The senior class, led by David Fox, Tim Smith, Terri Keller, and Mark Hotils scream at an outdoor assembly
- Tom Hull, senior, cuts another school rival off Mr. Tom Mankes tee-shirt.
- Sheik Rob Bowman performed the ceremony to defeat the Burlington Tigers.

Camouflage and alligators frequently appear in halls

A stranger uninitiated to the fads and fashions of FHS was walking down sophomore half when to his dismay, he was knocked down by somebody completely enveloped in camouflage; fatigues, hat, army jacket, and army boots. The stranger heard the buzz of a Sony Walkman as the camouflaged person boogled away.

From his viewpoint the stranger saw a sea of bizarre shoelaces, and pants that closed tight at the ankles by zippers, buttons, and laces

Getting up and brushing himself off, the stranger heard what appeard to be a foreign language. He heard many students saying such things as "Take off, ya hoser" and "Good day, hosehead!"

Once the stranger regained his composure, he discovered that the "foreign language" was really a form of English imported from Toronto by Doug and Bob McKenzie, stars of the talk show "Great White North" on the comedy show "Second City T.V."

Expressions such as "awesome" and "excellent" were also often heard

Sending flowers became very popular. Chusquin Club sent carnations and messages at Christmas and Valentine's Day for 50 cents. Flowers from florists and helium balloons were also frequently sent to students at school. Terri Kellar, senior, received a dozen balloons, roses, and a banana split on her birthday

Clothing styles were influenced by "preppie" and "punk" fashions, but the most frequently seen were Levis and "Members only" coats for men, and moccasins and jeans closing tightly at the ankies for girls

Shoelaces became a way to express one's individuality: rainbows, hearts, alligators, and "Gartield" (which became a very popular cartoon cat)

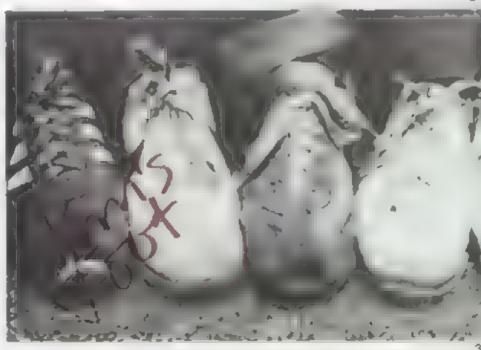

"Foreignor 4," "Moving Pictures" by Rush, "Escape" by Journey, and Tattoo You" by the Rolling Stones were a few albums that became well known

"Raiders of the Lost Ark," "Reds," and "Time Bandits" were popular movies

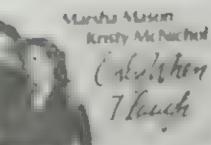

- Wearing knickers, a hot item this winter, is a good way to show off one's socks.
- Cowboy boots, another fashionable item, can be worn with almost anything.
- Funky shoelaces, such as these rainbows, crayons, and hearts, flooded FHS halls.
- Seeing "Arthur," "Heavy Metal" and other movies is a common pastime for high school students.
- Sony Walkman handheld stereos provide private music for Kip Carver and John Petty, seniors.
- Craig Willis, junior, wears the ever-popular pair of Levis to show off his best side.

Huskies win Rose Bowl

PASADENA, Calif (AP) — Freshman tailback Jacque Robinson provided the Washington Huskies' spark Friday, January 1, leading his team to a 28-0 victory over lowa in the 68th Rose bowl

Robinson, a 204-pound speedster from San Jose, Calif. ran 1 yard for Washington's first touchdown and went 34 for another as the underdog Huskies regained control for the Pacific-10 over the Big 10 in Rose Bowl play

The shutout was the first for Washington this season and made it 11 victories in the last 13 Rose Bowl games for the westerners, and seven out of the last eight. Washington gained revenge for its 23-6 loss to Michigan a year ago and lowa lost for the first time in three visits to Pasadena

Jetliner crash toll at 75

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recovery teams in boats, helicopters and in a cage lowered by crane pursued a grim search today (January 14) for scores of bodies entombed beneath the ice crusted Potomac River in the fuselage of a crashed jetliner. A police official said the "slow, tedious task" of recovery may take three days

Skiing proves phenomenal

Aside from the spills, chills, bruises, and brokenbones, skiing proved to be phenomenal. The now fell in ghastly amounts which made even the beginning skier sigh.

Lisa Lindell, sophomore, said the skiing this year was great. Alt was a lot better than last year because the anow was a lot better and there was a lot more of it.

The price for the bus ride with Ski Glub was $67 and lessons were additional. Lift tickets coat skiers $14.50 per day at Mt. Baker.

Lindell said that students usually got what they paid for when they were out on the slopes, but it all depended on the skier. "If you skied hard enough, you got your money's worth. The bus ride cost too much though." Other schools paid up to $20 less for their bus ride," she said.

Other students must have thought it cost too much also. Last aki sesson there were 200 skiers and this year it dropped down to about 110.

Dawn Bruce, junior, agreed that skiing this year was great. "Compared to last year it was fantastic. It was so much better, there was lots of powder and it was packed right. When it snowed you couldn't see very well. I hate it when it snows up there," she said.

FHS members of ski patrol at Mt. Baker were Ron-Eggers and Angela Dawn, juniors, and Deann Beorings, senior.

Main thing is to stay busy for Science Fiction club

"The main thing we tried to do this year was to have a lot of fun," said Mallory Nilsen, senior, about Science Fiction Club

Activities ranged from watching old reruna of "STAR TREK" to writing atories on science fiction.

"We had some very interesting stories ranging from blackholes to space battles," commented Mr Carl Steiner, club advisor. One of the major activities was the yearly field trip

"This year we went to the Seattle center. There is no special reason why we go, mainly just to go out and have some fun," said Nilsen

Members in Youth in Government also went on a major field trip, only theirs was to Olympis to hold a mock legislation session

"We spent the year in groups after school writing bills to get in practice for the session. Then we picked members to send as legislators for the mock session," said Robert Funk, senior

"The sessions were lots of fun and a great way to meet some really neat people," added Joe Granger, senior

SKY Club holds parties; Spanish Club holds dinner

Dances, parties, and sing-a-longs were regularly attended and organized by SKY Club members. SKY (Special Kiwanis Youth) Club was a service organization completely funded by Kiwanis Club that helped the handicapped and the elderly.

"We learned how to interact with them," said Anita_ Petry, senior.

"We're role models for them," said Karin Eschliman, junior

Members received awards from Kiwanis for points accumulated by attending meetings, organizing parties, and viewing films. The club also awarded members with t-shirts and sweatshirts

Club officers were Petty, president: Eschliman, vice president; and Julie Reimer, secretary

Most of the club attended the state convention in April

Mexico was the destination of 10 Spanish Club members. They spent 10 days in such places as Mexico City and Puerto Vallarta over spring vacation

Pinatas and M & M's were two of the items Spanish Club sold to raise money. Those traveling in Mexico paid their own way, so money was spent in ways benefiting the whole club, such as a progressive Mexican dinner December 19

"The dinner ended at Mark Nichols house where we played pool and punked out," said Mike Scruggs, senior

Kirstan Arestad, president; Debbie McCall, vice president; Kaye Dalanius, secretary; and Luara Nicholson and Tim Watson, treasurers; were club officers

French club stays busy

French Club kept busy with a variety of events. For the Homecoming parade with club members as passengers, they fashioned a float to look like an airplane

One of the bigger projects they planned was a trip to Seattle to see a French Folk music concert. Following the concert they dined at Le Tastevin, a French restaurant. The whole trip was funded by the club itself

To raise money members sold foreign candy which seemed to do well. "Selling candy has been very profitable for us." said Mr. Paul Benedict, French Club advisor

Other events included a Christmas party and a dinner for parents cooked by club members

Folk Dancing, hiking, and the exchange program occupied most of the German Club's time

Two FHS students, Audrey Slagle and Janelle Zatrine, were sent to Germany. In turn, FHS hosted five exchange students from Germany

The club also enjoyed folk dancing two times per month, various potluck meals, and a Christmas party

"The goal of German Club was to get to know each other, and get the flavor of German culture," said Mrs Eleanor Mischaikow, German Club advisor

- Going to dinner in Vencouver is a cultural experience for French club members Janet Snedicor, sophomore, Arnaud Godfroy senior and Fric Zatrine sophomore
- A quick stop at McDonalds proves to be interesting for Cathy Sozanic, junior and Carolyn Snyder, sophomore, while on the Club trip to Vancouver

- 6. Nate Bacon, senior, and Lorinda Hand, junior, study in the German room
- 7. German club members attend a meeting.

Conferences and flowers ! keep Chusquin Club busy

Selling flowers, attending conferences, ordering jackets, and hosting a basketball tournament were just a few examples of what Chusquin Club was busy doing

One of the conferences the club attended was the AIYCW (American Indian Youth Club of Washington) in October, held in Yakima. According to Albert Toby, senior, the purpose was to learn more about other tribes, their languages, and their customs

"It gives you a chance to get out and meet a lot of different people throughout the state," he said. "It's a really good learning experience too."

A money raiser that successfully collected $750 was a basketball tournament hosted by the club. Two Ferndale teams, four Lummi teams, a Western Washington University team and teams from Marysville and LaConner totalled ten

With some of this money the club decided to order jackets rather than just sweatshirts. A traditional Indian foods recipe book was put together containing recipes of clam chowder, smoked fish, steamed clams and many more and sold on Indian Treaty Day.

Some of the goals were to get family trees together, build a monument, host a variety show, and make a traditional calendar in Lummi language

- Practicing lines from their play are Chusquin club members Dolly Gaona and Hope Martin, sophomores.
- White advisor Mrs. Cynthia Williams observes, Raymond Cagey, freshman, tries on a coat that will be a possible addition to the club.

Posters 'pep up' players

As president of Pep Club, Anita Petty, senior, was a very busy person. "It was a lot of hard work," she said, "but we really enjoyed doing it."

Pep Club supported boys football, boys baseball, girls basketball, boys JV basketball, and gymnastics. Things they did to "pep" up the athletes were making locker posters, writing pep notes to players, and attending games. An added twist this year was the formation of a kazoo band that played at many of the athletic events.

Those responsible for boys basketball were known as Anderson's Basketball Club, or ABC for short. ABC members made locker posters for players and they made up a scrapbook of the past season for each player on the team

Wrestlers were supported by Mai Maids. They made up posters for the team and they attended all of the matches. For Christmas the Mat Maids threw a party for all of the wrestlers

ASB desires student action

"I wanted to give every student an opportunity to get involved," said Kip Carver, ASB president

Getting a variety of people involved was the them of leadership camp also, it was held in Fort Worden State Park, August 17-18. Students came up with ideas on how to get people involved. Some choices included the Free Fare concert, a food drive and Christmas door decorations.

Assemblies were the responsibility of Terri Kellar, vice president. "I wanted to get a variety of people yetling and showing more spirit," said Kellar

Other ASB officers were Janine Poole, treasurer; Delinda Wilson, secretary; Connie Reed, assistant-treasurer; and Chuck Osborn, publicity manager

The ASB accomplished other goals. The sound system was installed in the cafeteria and video games and pop machines were placed in the Old Main Gym

The ASB was in charge of the Homecoming dance in October. The high school won a free band at an all-county contest

- The 1981-82 ASB officers are row 1: Chuck Osborn, publicity manager; row 2: Janine Poole, treasurer; Delinda Wilson, secretary; Terri Kellar, vice president; Connie Reed, assistant treasurer; row 3: Kip Carver, president.

Editors' annual snow job wraps up long year

Expressions are everywhere. Everyday at school you see expressions of happiness, sadness, frustration, anger, anxiety, boredom and hope Besides emotionally, people express themselves through their own way—sports, academics, theatre, clothes, hobbies, music and art

This is how we came to choose "Expressions" for our theme in Aquila '82. Not only does it reflect you but it is also our way of expressing ourselves to you

We began by going to a yearbook camp in the summer and getting lots of different ideas for the yearbook

Then in September, with expressions of anticipation, we began putting these ideas into action

We knew it was going to be a big job but until we actually began we didn't realize how big. There were decisions to make about the cover, the endsheets and how we would utilize our color pages

Then there were photograph, copy, and layout assignments to make which not everyone was too thrilled about. And there was making sure everything was completed on time. With pressing deadlines and unfinished work we often expressed our frustration and anxiety

After the first deadline was met, we expressed our relief and forgot about deadline pressures and tensions for a moment. But then it was back to the grindstone to meet the next one with hopefully fewer traumas than the last one.

As the year progressed and we saw our ideas actually down on paper, we expressed our excitement at the thought of seeing the book completed

And then it was done Relief. This time, though, we knew we were really done with no more dead-lines to worry about. We had reached our goal—to try and present the best yearbook that we could

To the seniors of '82

Another year goes passing by Another graduation is here

To some this brings a joyous strike

To others brings a tear

For four years you have to Irod a path

From dawn to setting sun.

Put now the path gets steeper

And the camb is just begun

We re very glad to know you

We'll miss you when your gone

So to the class of 82

We dedicate this poem
